COL. O'BRIEN'S SUSPENSION

Copy of the Correspondence Which Gave Rise to the Order.

Commanding General District Na inate Officer-Refuses to Retract.

The incident involving the suspensi while in camp at Leesburg, Va., last Wednesday of Lieutenant Colonel Richard A. O'Brien, 2d Regiment, D. C. N. G., from his command and directing him to leave camp, as announced in The Star, has been followed by considerable discussion in local militia circles. It is pointed out, however, that all the facts in the case have not heretofore been published, and that the basis for the suspension-the criticism of the commanding general by a subordinate officer-has not figured to any extent in

The official correspondence in connection with the incident tells the whole story, without need of explanation or comment Captain Aifred P. Robbins, acting adjutant general, D. C. Militia, the 12th instant adiressed the following communication to

Lieutenant Colonel O'Brien:

"The commanding general having sent you an order by Captain C. F. Cook, one of his aids, and Captain Cook having reported that you, being in the post exchange, insisted that he should leave his horse and enter the exchange the commanding generater the exchange the commanding generater. enter the exchange, the commanding gen eral directs me to say that he cannot be ieve you were intentionally discourteous or that you were endeavoring to take advan-tage of official seniority, which is merely nominal.

The impropriety of attempting to compel an officer of the general staff to enter a place of public resort, there to deliver an official and confidential message, must be instantly evident to any one, and the impropriety is not lessened when the attempt is verbal and audible to others—officers, enlisted men and citizens—than the parties immediately concerned. An officer of the general staff, no matter what his rank, is the personal representative of the rank, is the personal representative of the commanding general, and as such is enti-tled to and must be accorded respectful

The confidential order borne by Captain Cook was verbal.

The Indorsement. The communication above quoted was reurned June 13, through military channels, to headquarters, with this indorsement signed by Lieut. Col. O'Brien: "Respectfully returned. Last afternoon, while sitting in the tent in rear of the post exchange, which is used for the accommodation of officers only, I was informed by an officer of the 1st Regiment that Capt. Cook wished to see me. I stated that I had no objections to his doing so. The bearer of this message reappeared and said the foregoing named officer had a message for me from the commanding general. for me from the commanding general. I then directed that he dismount and deliver same, as I was ready to receive it. Any statements to the contrary are false an

"If the line of thought expressed in this communication was followed, it strikes me very forcibly that the commanding general's orderly, as his representative, would have the same right to designate a place where I should appear to receive a message from him.

where I should appear to receive a message from him.

"If Capt. Cook had a verbal message from the commanding general to deliver, he failed to do so, and has apparently disobeyed his orders. Had he been familiar with common military usages, this incident would not have occurred.

"This, I have been given to understand, is a camp of instruction, and I am constrained to believe that it is the intention of the brigade commander to create conditions therein which are not only contrary to military precedents, but also ridiculous."

Respectfully Returned

Respectfully Returned. The communication was returned to Lieut. Col. O'Brien through military channels the same date, with an indorsement from the acting adjutant general as fol-"Respectfully returned. The commanding general directs me to offer Lieut. Col. O'Brien an opportunity to immediately retract his statement relative to his views as to 'the intention of the brigade commander.'" mander.' Several hours later the communication vas received back at headquarters with this indorsement: "Respectfully returned, supplementing the words, in the construction of this com-munication, 'it was intended,' in lieu of the words 'it is the intention of the brigade commander' in the first indorsement. Thereupon a special order was issued as follows:

29, will be the day selected. follows: "Lieut. Col. Richard A. O'Brien, 2d Reg-Richard L. Saunders and James N. iment, is suspended from his command, and will leave camp this date."
